Coolidge, He Knows

Press and Religion

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

A LONG TIME AGO on the May-flower President Coolidge, Kellogg, General Per-shing, your narrator on board, quoted George Harvey's statement that President Coolidge went on a mission to London to "collect Europe's debt to us." Cal-vin Coolidge looked up from his book, settled this question, and came here to borrow the money, said he, "why can't they seem to talk about it?"

* * *

MORE in an article published yesterday, Calvin Coolidge says concerning foreign debts:

"Congress already read what I have to say about it now.

"The question involved in the argument that the (European) debts should be canceled to increase our exports. Fundamentally this means a subsidy of the most enormous subsidy to foreign commerce that was ever proposed. This has a strange sound in the vocabulary of those who advocate that trade should be free and unrestricted. We would be engaged in subsidizing the trade of foreign people out of money collected from our own people.

If this policy is to be adopted, our taxpayers are to be paying the taxes of foreign people support, in order to increase their ability to trade with us, there is no reason to limit the process to those who happen to owe our government."

The principle would require a universal application. It would be good to select all countries which an argument could be made that our treasury would bear a part of their tax burden they could enlarge their commerce with us.

If we adopted this principle, logically we should open our treasury to all the world."

* * *

IF YOU KNOW President Coolidge, your imagination can see the expression in his gray New England eye as he wrote those words. Every American ought to remember them, and remember that the treasury of the United States is an American institution, not an international charity organization.

Many individual Americans would welcome cancellation of their debts to brokers, banks, stores, mortgage lenders, as a step toward prosperity but that isn't done.

Our European friends should read again President Hoover's statement that the world's expense preparing for war is five and a half billion dollars every year. If Europe would resolve to stop international murder and discontinue her war expenses, she would save in three years more than she owes us.

GREAT BRITAIN is worried, "staggered," by the cost of the dole, running up now to $500,000,000 of our money a year. That is too much if spent unnecessarily. But it is a small sum if the spending prevents serious revolution.

England preferred sending money to the continent, financing the fights of others in Napoleon's time, to going over and fighting on her own account. When the peace was ripe for picking, she went over and picked it at Waterloo.

With the question of unemployment dangerous in Great Britain, that rich country prefers to pay a billion feeding the people rather than pay the cost of a revolution.

As is having the Labor party in power is revolution enough for

Meakley on a charge of issuing a check without funds; Louis Rothgang, Herbert Rothgang and Darrel Swearinger on charges of breaking and entering a warehouse with intention to commit larceny. SIX CHILDREN DIE IN CRASH

Two Other School Children and Bus Driver in Critical Condition.

HIT BY FREIGHT TRAIN

Driver's Mistake in Shifting Gears Causes Tragedy in California.

By The Associated Press

MERCED, Calif., May 8—Six elementary school children are dead as the result of a school bus-train collision at a grade crossing here yesterday. Two other children and the bus driver, Douglas Creggar, 59, were in a critical condition today.

The bus, crowded with two score small children on their way from school, was thrown into a ditch when the locomotive of a slowly moving freight train struck it broadside.

The dead: Robert Fuller, 10; Dolores Epsen, 8, Billy Epsen, 8, twin brother of Dolores, Janette Ahr, 8; Marshall Petrel, 7, and Muriel Keller, 8.

Hospital physicians said Creggar, who suffered a broken back and internal injuries, and Helen Fogleman, 9, might die.

Twenty-three children were in hospitals.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wickland, Merced motorists, reported the bus slowed up momentarily as it approached the track, as if the driver had shifted gears, and then moved directly in front of the locomotive.

Traffic officers said Creggar, just before lapsing into unconsciousness, said he tried to stop and thought he was putting the gears in neutral.

BOY IN HERO ROLE

Limps 10 Blocks with Broken Ankle To Tell Tragedy News.

By United Press

MERCED, Calif., May 8—Out of a school bus tragedy that claimed the lives of six children, emerged today an 8-year-old boy hero, who staggered 10 blocks with a fractured ankle so he could notify his teachers the motor stage carrying his chums had been hit by a train.

The boy, Leland Belame, was one of 44 children on the bus when a Santa Fe freight train ran into it at the G street crossing.

Although seriously hurt, the Belame boy staggered away from the scene, hobbled back 10 blocks to the school and notified the teachers, who sent him to a hospital, then hastened to join doctors and nurses in caring for the other injured.

STUDENTS' STRIKE IS OF SHORT DURATION

Mt. Pleasant Pupils Expected in School Today; Walked Out Yesterday.

By The Associated Press

MT. PLEASANT, O., May 8—Students of Mt. Pleasant High school who left their classes yesterday to protest against the board of education's refusal to reappoint Superintendent William Patterson, were due back in their places today.

The more than 100 students walked out at noon, and paraded through the town demanding that the board rescind its decision. Most of them later were persuaded by Miss Caroline Ruckman, high school principal, to return to school, and all were expected back today.

School board officials said Patterson was not reappointed because he has not moved his home from Bethesda, near here. Local business men have come to his defense and Patterson was to confer today with County Superintendent of Schools Carl Manrod at Steubenville.

Courtauld Found After Winter Spent Alone on Arctic Ice Cap.

By The Associated Press

ANGMAGSALIK, Greenland, May 8—A dog sledge trailed by four men, winding through the icy crags of Greenland, today took Augustine Courtauld, youthful British scientist, back to safety and human society after a winter spent alone on the Greenland ice cap.

Of the three men with Courtauld the leader is H. G. Watkins, chief of the British Arctic air route expedition which last fall left Courtauld in an igloo on the ice cap with the promises to return in March to relieve him after a winter spent in observation of meteorological conditions.

Watkins, who completed his work in March and April for the igloo which was Courtauld's winter home, yesterday morning—two months late—kept his promise, found Courtauld, in whom hope of rescue must have begun to fade, and started back with him over 105 miles to the expedition's base, at Sermelik Fjord, 35 miles inland.

Flier Arrives

Watkins' success was attained as six expeditions to rescue Courtauld were got under way. Had Watkins failed, or been a few hours later, success would have rested with the most sophisticated of these expeditions, that of the Swedish civilian pilot, Captain Ahlin Akerstrom, who flew from

TRAIN CRASH CAUSES BLAST

Gasoline Tank Truck Blows Up in Crossing Wreck Near Toledo.

ONE DEAD, TWO INJURED

Driver Killed, Trainmen Fatally Hurt as Locomotive Cab Catches Fire.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., May 8—A truck driver was killed and two trainmen were injured, probably fatally, when a tank truck loaded with 1,000 gallons of gasoline exploded when struck by a New York Central passenger train west of here today. The driver was Melvin McCormick, 23, of Sylvania.

Jesse E. Mann, engineer, and E. W. Ingold, fireman both of Toledo, are near death in a hospital. John Blaisdell, express messenger, was burned on the hands.

The passenger cars did not catch fire.

The train was bound for Jackson, Mich.

McCormick made a stop at the railroad, it was siad, but apparently failed to note the approach of the train.

Then the locomotive struck the truck, the gasoline exploded and caught fire.

Engineer Mann and Fireman Ingold, after applying the air brakes, jumped through a curtain of fire. Everything inflammable in their cab was burned.

LINER AGROUND

Berengaria Runs into Channel Mud as Fog Clouds Course

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 8—The Cunard liner Berengaria, from Southampton with 468 passengers, went aground today in Gravesend bay.

Officers of the Cunard line in New York reported the liner was not in distress. Plowing through the heavy fog and rain she ran aground in the soft mud on one side of Ambros channel.

Since she was held only by the bow, it was believed the ship could ease out with the assistance of tugboats as soon as high tide was reached.

SCIENTIST IN COMA

By The Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif., May 8—Dr. Albert Michelson, 78, dean of American physicists, was in a coma today. The lapse came late yesterday in an illness brought on by overwork in his creation of a device to measure the speed of light. A vacuum tube a mile long was completed before his collapse a month ago.

"Kidnaped" Gambler Faces Huge Tax Claim

CHICAGO, May 8—Federal officials filed claim for $354,639 today against James Hackett, suburban gambling czar, on the charge that he paid no tax on an income of $2,000,000 between 1914 and 1929.

Hackett, wealthy Blue Island resident, said last week he had been kidnaped and $150,000 ransom money paid by his family for his release. Federal agents announced they had been investigating his income and characterized his story as an attempt to evade tax payments.

An income tax lien filed today included interest and penalties. Hacket was charged with making no returns for 16 years.

SLAYER CAUGHT AFTER BATTLE

Three-Hour Fight Precedes Capture of "Two-Gun" Crowley in N. Y.

TWO COMPANIONS TAKEN

19-Year-Old Desperado Wanted for Pair of Slayings in Two Weeks.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 8—Captured after a spectacular gun battle and siege of an apartment building where he was hiding, "Two-Gun" Crowley, 19-year-old killer, was under heavy guard today in Bellevue hospital.

He was wounded in one wrist and the legs by police bullets, which had poured through walls and windows. Hundreds of bullets were fired. Tear gas bombs were also used in the three hour battle.

Crowley was taken prisoner with a pistol hidden under each trouser leg. With him were his sweetheart, Helen Walsh, 16, and Rudolph Durniger. They were in a three-room apartment on the top floor of a four-story house on West Ninetieth street. Thinking they would die in the siege they wrote farewell letters.

Sought Since Monday

Crowley and the girl had been sought since Monday, for the killing of Patrolman Frederick Hirsch of the Nassau county police in Merrick, Long Island. The policeman went to a parked car and asked Crowley for his license. The answer was a shot. Police said Crowley had confessed he killed both Hirsch and Virginia Brannen, a dance hall hostess from Bangor, Me., whose body was thrown out of an automobile in Yonkers two weeks ago. Durniger also confessed he killed the Brannen girl, saying he was jealous. Police were inclined to believe Durniger did it.

Crowley also confessed he shot and wounded a New York detective and had participated in several robberies.

In the siege of the apartment machine gun bullets ricocheted from granite walls and pistol fire penetrated windows and doors as 200 policemen fired. Five pistols used by the besieged trio were found after their capture. None of the police was hit.

Tear Gas Used

Firemen were called and holes were cut in the roof. When police threw tear bombs into the room, Crowley tossed them into the street. He yielded, he said because his ammunition was gone.

The well-to-do neighborhood at Ninetieth street between Riverside Drive and Broadway was the battle sector. As the firing stopped, a dozen detectives walked into the building and came out with Durniger and the girl. An ambulance surgeon and two policemen brought Crowley out on a stretcher. The prisoners and their captors were suffering from the tear gas. The girl was sent to the Nassau county jail.

True to his name "two-gun" Crowley—his real name is Francis—had two guns on his person when captured, although he first told police he tossed them out of the window.

"What's the idea of fooling us?" a detective asked him.

Crowley snarled back, "Well, I'm going to the electric chair, ain't I, what did you expect me to do?"

FOKKER PLANES O K

Commerce Department Restores Craft to Passenger Service

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 8—Thirty-five Fokker airplanes forbidden to carry passengers may take to the air again shortly with human cargoes.

After several conferences, the commerce department aeronautics branch, Anthony H. G. Fokker and Air Transport operators agreed on a maintenance program for the F-10 and F-10A type planes restricted Monday from passenger service.

Clarence M. Young, assistant commerce secretary for aeronautics, announced the agreement, which he said would involve reconditioning and maintenance of wings and modification of control design.

10 ARRESTED AS OFFICERS VISIT MARION

Fifty Gallons of Assorted Liquors Seized in West End.

8 MEN, 2 WOMEN HELD

Charges in Federal Court at Toledo To Be Placed Against Prisoners.

Liquor trafficking in Marion suffered a severe setback yesterday afternoon when 20 federal prohibition agents paid the city a speedy visit, arrested 10 persons on liquor law violation charges and confiscated approximately 50 gallons of assorted liquors.

The sudden crusade was the most extensive the city has seen in many months. Every place raided yielded prisoners to the officers, with evidence to warrant prosecution.

Federal Court Charges

Six white men, two colored men and two colored women, all arrested within a few moments after the sudden visit had begun, will be taken to Toledo for prosecution in federal court, R. M. Hayes, federal agent in charge of the raiding officers, said. The prisoners were temporarily lodged in city prison.

All but one of the raids were on private residences. The Hanko restaurant at 669 West Center street was the only business house invaded. Joe Rine was arrested there on evidence of a purchase of liquor made some time ago by federal agents. A raid failed to disclose additional evidence.

Six of the 10 prisoners are being held with previous purchases of liquor as evidences. Although every place visited was raided, liquor was found only at four.

The largest haul of confiscated liquors was made at 1007 West Center street, where the officers seized 15 gallons of wine, 20 pints and 14 quarts of home brew beer, and arrested Joe Frank.

At 120 Waterloo street, Sam Nicolos was arrested and 74 pints and three quarts of home brew beer, a pint of wine, and two quarts of whisky were seized.

Hold Woman

Sindie Lyle, colored woman, was arrested in a raid on 706 West Center street at which six half-pint bottles full of whisky, 42 pints and 11 quarts of home brew beer were seized. Fourteen pints and a quart of beer were found buried in the yard.

At 801 West Center street, 10 gallons of home brew mash and a quart of beer were seized, and Frank Nicolosi was arrested.

Other arrests, made on the strength of previous purchases, include Lloyd Gillette at 142 Fiss avenue, Mary Rose, colored, at 183 Senate street; Carl Temple at 258 Senate street; Sylvester Lowery and L. D. Lowell, both colored, at 193 Senate street.

Exact nature of the charges to be pereferred against each of the prisoners was not disclosed by federal agents yesterday.

GET THREE IN KENTON

Agents Hit Hardin County Town on Return from Marion.

Special to The Star

KENTON, O., May 8—Conducting a series of raids in Kenton Thursday, federal prohibition agents operating out of Toledo, arrested three men and removed them to Toledo for arraignment before Commissioner Gaines on charges of illegal possession, sale and maintaining a public nuisance.

The men, according to R. M. Hayes, deputy agent in charge of the force of six federal agents, were Ed Sharp and his son Clarence, and "Buck" Young. Five bottles of alleged whisky and 31 pints of alleged homebrew were confiscated in the business room operated by Sharp, Hayes said.

The raiders stopped over in Kenton en route to their headquarters in Toledo from Marion, where they raided nine places and arrested ten men.

Wonder Cure

(Will Rogers Special)

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., May 8—With my wife, just prowling around out here in the desert and run into Jimmy Walker's old hideout. They advertise it as the "place that even cured Mayor Walker of staying out nights."

Another ad reads "If you are troubled with investigations and Republicans, come to Palm Springs for a tan that when you get home they can't tell who you are."

There is more than a hundred mayors here now. They are telling themselves of stories that Walker told like pictures taken in.

MARCHERS DUE HERE AT 4:30

County and City Police To Escort Delegation to Fairgrounds.

Marion tonight will be host to nearly 150 Ohio hunger marchers, who are scheduled to arrive here at 4:30 p. m. on their pilgrimage to the state capital to file a plea for unemployment insurance.

One hundred and thirty marchers left Galion this morning for Marion by way of Harding highway. Sixteen others left Upper Sandusky for Marion this morning, to join the other group here tonight and continue to Delaware Saturday.

The art hall at the fairgrounds has been made available as sleeping quarters for the marchers here tonight. No provision has been made to furnish them with food officials said today.

Police To Meet Them

The marchers will have an escort of police while in this county and city, Sheriff C. C. Fye and Police Chief William E. Marks said today. County authorities will meet both groups of marchers at the county line, escort them to the city limits where they will be joined by police and escorted to the fairgrounds. The marchers will march on East Center street to State street, and north on State street to the fairgrounds.

A public demonstration has been planned at the fairgrounds tonight, advance representatives of the marchers said yesterday. Andy Parks of Akron, Joe West of Barberton, A. Pinkney, colored, of Cleveland, C. B. Cowan of Cleveland, and Mrs. Nina Wilson of Akron, are among the persons scheduled to speak.

Delaware Next

The pilgrimage will continue to Delaware about 9:30 a. m. Saturday, the marchers said. They will be met at the county line by a delegation of Delaware city and county police.

Sunday at noon, three groups of marchers from all sections of the state will meet on the state capitol lawn and organize their committees to see Governor George White Monday in the interest of unemployment insurance and various other of their demands, according to Associated Press dispatches.

Bishop William Montgomery Brown came to the aid of the marchers when they arrived in Galion last night. He financed sleeping quarters, and gave the marchers "mulligan stew" and coffee for the marchers at the Galion Mission House, and also provided breakfast this morning. A demonstration was held in Brownella hall there, in which Bishop Brown took part, speaking on "The Resistless Power of Organized Labor."

One hundred and nineteen marchers, including three women, were in the group at Galion. Five more marchers from Marion are expected to join them Saturday.

At Upper Sandusky fourteen Toledo marchers were lodged in the town hall. When they raised a disturbance at 8:30 p. m. the doors were unlocked and they went to restaurants for food and then returned to spend the night in the town hall.

the Tories. And if a country can afford 20 billions for an external war, it can afford some money to prevent dangerous dissatisfaction at home.

We may come to realize that even in this blessed land we can't solve a great problem by handing money to Y.M.C.A., Red Cross or Salvation Army, with a request to hand "whatever is left after the overhead" to the needy.

WALTER DURANTY says Bolshevism is "a new and expressively militant religion." Mrs. Clarence Warren, on the contrary, says the Russians have abolished God and offer no substitute for God. She says, "They have tried to destroy spiritual hope as they have destroyed earthly hope." Also she says "Russia is the most immoral country I ever entered, and I have been through most European countries."

The lady, whose portrait looks highly intelligent, must have seen a great deal in a short time.

One thing is sure. Giving up the outward forms of religion is dangerous, if you want religion to continue as an important institution. Samuel Johnson, who knew it, said so in his "Life of Milton."

"To be of no church is dangerous. Religion, of which the rewards are distant and which is animated only by faith and hope, will glide by degrees out of the mind unless it be invigorated and reimpressed by external ordinances, by stated calls to worship, and the salutary influence of example."

FALSE ALARMS KEEP FIRE TRUCKS ON RUN

Two Calls Send Departments on Wild Goose Chases; Ambulance Sent Out.

A false alarm epidemic gave local firemen unnecessary disturbance last night. At 11:02 p. m. a call came in from box 46 at Mt. Vernon avenue and Elm street which was answered by firemen from the central station.

At 11:40 a second call came in, this time from box 85 at Mary and Klerx streets which was answered by the firemen from the No. 3 station. Fire Chief McFarland said this morning that steps were being taken to locate the would-be joker and that if caught would be given the full extent of the penalty provided by the ordinance against such an offense.

A false ambulance call was also received by W. C. Boyd last night. Shortly after 12 midnight a telephone call asked that an ambulance be sent to the Rainbow Gardens east of Garfield park. When the ambulance arrived the neighborhood was deserted.

SEN. BULKLEY URGES PARTY LIQUOR STAND

Ohio Solon Shares Speakers' Stand at Jefferson Day Banquet.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., May 8—The Democratic party should take a definite stand on the liquor question in its 1932 campaign, Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio declared at the annual Jefferson day banquet of Cuyahoga county Democrats last night.

Bulkley, a foe of national prohibition, said he believed that "a political party should attempt to solve the questions that perplex the country and it should be the duty of the Democrats to take up the Eighteenth amendment in their party platform and offer the best solution they can find to problems which we know exist." He urged that an amendment be drawn up and the party pledged to submit it at state constitutional conventions.

Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee saw the dominant issue as "broken promises of Republican prosperity." He termed the Harding, Coolidge and Hoover administrations a "reign of pure materialism and broken promises." Abnormally high tariffs, he said, are the principal causes for worldwide depression. He advised reciprocal tariffs and trade agreements.

RESERVE OFFICERS ENTERTAIN FRIENDS

Final Meeting of Year Held; Talk Given on Rainbow Division.

Wives and friends of members of the Reserve Officers association were guests at the dinner last night at the Marion Club, which preceded the program meeting held at Harding high school.

Members of Boy Scout Troop No. 5 of the American Legion and K of R companies, O. N. G., were guests during lectures which marked the close of the third course for the group.

An interesting talk illustrated with stereopticon slides was given by First Lieut. Edward M. Taylor of the field artillery, who is stationed with the regular army at Fort Hayes in Columbus. Many of the scenes showed the operations in the St. Mihiel sector in which D company, as a part of the Rainbow division, was actively engaged.

The association which is made up of officers in Marion, Wyandot and Crawford counties will resume its activities next fall.

The parade will leave Forest Lawn school at 1:30 p. m. to music furnished by the Eagles band, will march to Garfield park where a short program will be carried out.

CHURCH OBSERVES CENTENNIAL HERE

Epworth M. E. Plans Celebration as 100 Years Ends.

and now superintendent of the Hillsboro district, Dr. Hillman, who was pastor from 1892 to 1896, Dr. C. R. Havinghurst of Columbus, pastor from 1911 to 1912 and Dr. D. H. Bailey, pastor from 1905 to 1911 and now vice president of Ohio Northern university are a few of the pastors who will return.

Family Night Tuesday

Dr. A. E. Smith, pastor from 1899 to 1905, is perhaps the most widely known of Epworth's former pastors. Dr. Smith was serving as minister here in 1905 when he was called to Ohio Northern university to accept the presidency of that institution. He served as president for 25 years. He is now in Florida and will not be able to attend the centennial.

Four speakers will take part in the Epworth family night program Tuesday. Four departments of the church work will be discussed as follows: "Epworth and Evangelism," John H. Bain; "Epworth and Missions," Mrs. Grace Pariette Sifritt; "Epworth and Her Sunday School," Hayes Newby; "Epworth and Her Preachers," John H. Clark. The Sunday school orchestra and Epworth chorus choir will furnish music.

The cast of 125 in the pageant which will be presented Wednesday night by Mrs. C. E. Turley, will be announced later. The pageant will dramatize "One Hundred Years of Epworth's History."

Mrs. W. H. Goode of Sidney, O., National Woman's Home Missionary society president, will be the principal speaker at a mother and daughter banquet Thursday night at the church. This affair has been set aside for the women and girls of the church.

Dr. Merton S. Rice, pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church at Detroit and one of the best known pastors in this section of the country, will lecture on the subject, "The Skylark of Methodism," Friday at 7:30 p. m. Two sermons by Bishop Hughes on Sunday morning will conclude the week's program.

Lists Pastorates

An outline of the pastorates at Epworth since the present edifice was dedicated under Dr. Wallace follows:

Dr. Hillman, 1892-1896; Dr. Stewart C. Wright, deceased, 1896 to 1899; Dr. A. E. Smith, 1899 to 1905; Dr. David H. Bailey, 1905 to 1911; Dr. C. R. Havinghurst, 1911 to 1912; Dr. G. A. Scott of Cincinnati, 1912 to 1915; Dr. Jesse Swank, 1915 to 1925; Dr. R. L. George, 1925 to 1929; Dr. C. E. Turley, present pastor.

Dr. Wallace lives at 2015 Clinton avenue in Toledo. Dr. Smith makes his winter home at Winter Haven, Fla., and his summer home at Lakeside, O. He is a familiar figure to members of Epworth who spend their summers in school at Lakeside.

Dr. Havinghurst is now living at 1502 Bracken Park South in Columbus and Dr. G. A. Scott is serving as pastor of Epworth M. E. church in Cincinnati.

Begging Fashion Plate Gets $10 Fine in Court

Lucius Hammond, who a beggar's career was cut short by police Wednesday afternoon after he had solicited funds in a drive from two local business men to help him on his way to Arizona where he was going for his health, was fined $10 by Judge Martin this morning on a charge of begging. The fine was suspended on condition that he leave the city at once.

Hammond, dressed in the latest fashion, was arrested in the lobby of a local hotel after he had been identified by two business men as the man who, dressed in old clothes and haggard, had solicited funds from them. Hammond told Police Chief Marks he had arrived in this city on Tuesday night.

Chaplin Refuses Invitation of King of England

By The Associated Press

LONDON, May 8—Charlie Chaplin will stick to the silver screen like the shoemaker to his last and not even the invitation or "command" of Britain's king and queen will lure him to the stage.

The Evening Standard recording an interview with Chaplain at Juan Les Pins, France, today said that he had refused a royal command invitation to appear at a benefit vaudeville performance soon when their majesties will attend.

"I don't appear in public that way," the newspapers quoted Chaplin. "The last thing in the world I want to do is make a stage appearance. It would be sacrilege."

The Evening Standard said that Chaplin was sending a check to the benefit which has been arranged by a royal committee for aged and disabled vaudeville artists.

Most actors regard the invitations to appear at command performances, which receive their name from the wording of the invitations as feathers in their caps and there have been very few refusals. It is not certain that either King George or Queen Mary expressed a wish to see Chaplin in person at the performance although this may have been the case.

Chaplin is a British citizen. He has been represented as regarding the life of the British country gentleman as his ideal.

SECKEL SENTENCE AFFIRMED BY COURT

Caledonia Man Loses Fight To Escape Prison Term for Theft.

Charles E. Seckel, 67, of Caledonia, lost his fight in the appellate court to escape the penitentiary sentence imposed on him in common pleas court here for allegedly stealing money from Mrs. Amanda Smith, his neighbor.

Decision of the fourth district court of appeals, affirming the finding of the common pleas court, was received by Clerk of Courts Everett E. Grigsby today.

Seckel "virtually invited the jury to draw the strongest inferences possible against him" by not taking the stand to testify as to how he came in possession of the money which Mrs. Smith claimed, the appellate court ruled. "The jury properly accepted the invitation. The record of the case justified the verdict," the ruling continues.

Seckel was found guilty of taking $405 from Mrs. Smith and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary when tried in the common pleas court.

The appellate court reversed the case of Michael E. Sabback against William J. Beeber, involving an attempt of Weeber to collect three alleged trade acceptances for $62 each.

Weeber obtained judgments against Sabback for the amounts of the acceptances in the municipal and common pleas courts. The appellate court reversed the case and remanded the case to the common pleas court.

DELAY PHONE BILLS TO CITY SUBSCRIBERS

Company Holds Up April Statements as Lower Rate Is Ordered.

Apparently undecided as to what course to pursue regarding an order of federal judges recently to make lower telephone rates effective here May 1, officials of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. today were still holding April bills which ordinarily would have been placed in the mail May 1.

A. J. Berry, local manager of the company, could not be reached today, but it is understood that no bills have been sent out since May 1, nor has the company accepted any payments since that time.

The court ordered the lower rates effective here to speed up the rate case which has been involved in litigation for several years. The new rates, which mean a reduction of approximately 25 cents on the monthly telephone bill of local subscribers, are still in dispute.

Earlier this month Mr. Berry said he had received orders not to bill after May 1 until further instructions were given.

Local subscribers will not be penalized for not paying bills before May 10, as the discount period will be extended, Mr. Berry said at that time.

MINE TOWN QUIET AS TROOPS ARRIVE

Guardsmen Patrol Evarts, Ky., as Peace Negotiations Proceed.

By The Associated Press

EVARTS, Ky., May 8 — This little mountain town assumed a military air today as patrols of national guardsmen were posted at strategic points to guard against recurrence of outbreaks that have cost five lives in the nearby coal fields.

Since the arrival of more than 300 troops yesterday, Evarts has been quiet. No disturbances were reported last night, and families that previously fled, fearing violence, returned. Schools will be reopened Monday. They were closed because parents feared to send their children during the troubled times.

Col. Dan M. Carrell, commanding the guards, conferred with mine workers and operators with a view to ending definitely the disorders in the Harlan county mining regions.

In the beginning the patrolling of Evarts, Col. Carrell explained it was solely for the protection of the community and its people from further disturbances. The troops will operate on an impartial and unbiased basis, he said, to aid in working out the coal field's problems.

Police Judge Bradley Burkhart of Evarts, who has figured prominently in negotiations between the factions, explained the general situation. The mine operators, he said, were averse to recognition of the unions. The workers are opposed to the armed guards the operators have employed to protect the mines and say some miners have been discharged for union affiliations and for failure to purchase supplies at company commissaries. These differences led to gun battles.

TARIFF AGAIN FLAYED AT C. OF C. MEETING

British Delegate to World Conference Assails Policy of America.

WASHINGTON, May 8—Despite an admonition by its retiring president, George Theunis of Belgium, that delegates avoid political arguments, the International chamber of Commerce today heard another attack on American tariff and war debt policies.

Dr. W. H. Coates, British delegate, said Europe would "shut out" production of United States efficiency "if you will not take the products of our efficiency, whatever be their form, or whatever their nationality."

International debts, he added, could be paid only by the transfer of physical goods or service. Since high tariffs exclude goods, "they prevent payment of international debts of all kinds," he held.

"It is no answer to say there is no tariff on raw materials, if the debtor has few or no raw materials to sell," he said. "The war international debts are owned by industrial nations. To shut out their offered payments in manufactured goods is unreasonable and ironic."

Captain Ahrenberg will undertake a search of the ice about 60 miles further north to see if he can find any trace of the expedition of Professor Albert Wegener, German scientist, who is supposed to be in that neighborhood but has not been heard from for many months.

Tax Reduction Groups To Study Tax Situation

Expert Man Employed To Make Investigation with View To Lowering Governmental Costs in County, City and Schools; To Hold Meetings.

A plan of action for two Marion organizations fostering tax reduction proposals has been outlined for the immediate future, officials of the organization announced after a meeting Wednesday night in the offices of the law firm of Harhart & Warner.

Marion County Taxpayers' League employed Clarence Bushong of Akron, former state examiner, to make an investigation of the expenditures of Marion county tax funds by county and city governments and the operation of schools. The investigation was ordered by the league with an eye to making suggestions where expenditures might be reduced.

Following an intensive membership campaign in the city and county which has been laid, officers of the league, which is now working in conjunction with the Ohio Tax Reduction League, say, C. E. Wharton, a speaker who has addressed several sections of the state on proposals for tax reduction, will conduct a series of six meetings in various sections of the county beginning tonight at 8 at Kirkpatrick. "The Farmer's Troubles and the Way Out" will be his topic.

The speeches are a part of a drive to boost membership of the Taxpayers' League. Dr. Frederic C. Smith of Marion will also participate in the Kirkpatrick meeting tonight. Dr. Smith is one of the instigators of the Ohio Tax Reduction League.

One of the projects on the program of the league, Dr. Smith said yesterday, is to obtain a sufficient number of signatures on petitions to put the proposition of public employes participating in political campaigns up to a public vote. Public employes appointed to their posts should be barred from participating in any political movement or campaign, Dr. Smith declared.

Fifteen hundred petitions will be circulated here and elsewhere in the state where branches of the league are being organized, Dr. Smith said. It is the hope of the league to eventually cover the state.

Welfare Director Urges Community Program Development

FIVE COUNTIES AT CONFERENCE

Relief Should Be Keyed to Individual Needs, Speaker Says at Kenton.

Special to The Star

KENTON, May 8—A two-fold responsibility for meeting emergency needs rising out of unemployment and also building up community programs for prevention of dependency and delinquency, was laid upon the group attending the district welfare conference here Friday by John McSweeney, director of the State Department of Public Welfare.

The conference was attended by representatives from Allen, Auglaize, Hardin, Logan, Shelby and Wyandot counties. "Our immediate job is to take care of those who through no fault of their own are out of work," he said. Developing public service was stressed by the state director in pointing out the fact that nearly 75 per cent of relief given in the last winter had been given from public funds.

"The great amount of harm which can be done an individual who receives relief unless it is keyed to his individual needs, was pointed out by Miss Mary Irene Atkinson, superintendent of charities of the State Department of Public Welfare, in her address as one of the main reasons for adequate study of the needs of any individual requiring help.

"Business depressions will be with us as long as we retain intensely individualistic philosophy of business," said W. E. Binkley, professor of economics and political science at the Ohio Northern University of Ada, who addressed the opening of the one-day conference. "Business depressions are the recurrent maladyments of an unplanned economic system," he said, "and constitute a challenge to out social intelligence and raise the question as to whether the race can develope the collective wisdom to shift the emphasis from production to a fair and just distribution."

Isaac McElroy, probate judge of Hardin county, was chairman of the conference.

Most of Lew's musical training has been as a violinist. His father was a soloist in the Cathedral at Tours, France, and his mother was a singer in the church choir, Leeds, England, but both of his parents were anxious that the lad become a violinist rather than a vocalist.

Two years ago he was given an audition in the NBC studios and there his singing career began. Now he's one of the most popular crooners on the air.

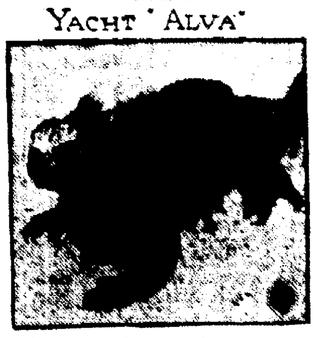
VANDERBILT PLANS NEW CRUISE

MR. and MRS. WILLIAM K. VANDERBILT

YACHT "ALVA"



SOUTH SEAS IGUANA.

By International News Service

NEWPORT NEWS, Va.—Perhaps one of the most noted sea explorers in America is the socially prominent William Kissam Vanderbilt. Many will recall his eventful voyage aboard the Ara, in which, accompanied by his wife, a few guests and a crew of 36, the millionaire sportsman, set out from New York on a trip around the world. During the eight months' cruise on the 213-foot yacht, the Vanderbilt party touched at 79 European and African ports. The trip took them through the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, the Mediterranean, Arabian, China and Red seas.

Mr. Vanderbilt, who is a lieutenant commander in the United States naval reserve, commanded the yacht on the 28,000-mile voyage. In a comprehensive manner he described his journey in a 264-page volume embellished by 29 color plates depicting various fish secured, besides about 100 other educational illustrations. He secured many rare specimens of fish for his private collection on the north shore of Long Island, N. Y. Included in the 3,000 specimens of marine life were many birds of rare scientific value. Perhaps the most interesting of the catches, from a non-scientific viewpoint, was a crucifix fish, which has on the under part of its skull a detailed representation of the Saviour upon the cross. It was captured in the Sea of Fonseca, Manhuera Islands.

THE Ara is a historical yacht. Bought by Mr. Vanderbilt, it was originally built for the British Admiralty at the end of the World War and later turned over to the French. It was aboard this flush-deck yacht that W. K. Vanderbilt spent his honeymoon cruise with his bride, the former Mrs. Rosamond Lancaster Warburton.

It has now been replaced by the Alva, which slipped in here with the tide recently, to be fitted for another world cruise through the seven seas. The present Mrs. Vanderbilt will, it is reported, be with the commander when the Alva leaves here early in July for a trip which will carry her through the South Seas, to Australia, the Indian ocean and Mediterranean. Built in Kiel, Germany, and completed recently, the yacht has special equipment for the collection and preservation of sea life.

The object of the cruise is to add other specimens to the 1,000 varieties which already occupy what is said to be the finest marine museum in the country, the Vanderbilt museum near Centerport, Long Island, N. Y.

Chic Star Patterns

Practical and Simple

Undergarments in Sizes 36 to 46.

PATTERN 2081

Be sure you have several slips to wear under your lovely Summer frocks, because warm weather is very hard on undergarments and they need frequent laundering. This season, particularly, you'll want slips in different colors to alter the appearance of your sheer chiffon frocks. Peach, green, banana and tea-rose crepe de chine underthings are favorites with smart women. Ecru lace around the top of the garment will often take the place of a vestee. Pattern 2081 is slightly moulded to the body and flared well below the snug hipline.

Obtainable only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch fabric.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

CHAPTER 17

Jon's Burning Words

...ON'S head was sunk be... his bowed shoulders. His ... suddenly painful to ...

...myself," he continued, "I ...ear to see you day after ...reminded of . . . him."

...watching the bent ...ghten. He kept his eyes ... He spoke steadily.

...seven years older ...makes a lot of differ... kids. But after... up to him. He was ... and violent and ... was something like my ...

...going to say any... Was he going to sit ...air head bowed in his ...ulders hunched? He ...

...most people. No ...him. And I was ...him. You know how ...mother sometimes looks ...? Well, I would ...anything Nick told me ...seemed to hate us all—

...mattered to him but ... He wouldn't go to ...spent my mother. But ...my step-father, and Damon ...came to live with us after my ...was married a second time. ...left him alone. A few days ...he was going to Paris to ...we quarreled. He struck me ...knocked me down. I said I ...d to God he was dead. I never ...d to lay eyes on him again. ...id I never would. He went ...and didn't write. And I was ...roud to write first. This ...he was to come back. In... you came. . . ."

...eyes, she saw, were blurred ...tears. After a while he went on more steadily, not in that voice that he forced to be cold and hard.

"When I saw you in the station—that little girl I had met years ago in England, it seemed as though—you'd come back to show me what a beast I'd been. I thought Nicholas must have told you he hated me."

"He never told me anything."

"I don't suppose I'll ever get over it. When you love a person as I loved him, as you—" his voice trailed off.

The moment had come that she had dreaded. She must tell him that she had never loved Nicholas. Jon held out his hand.

"Nora," he said, "will you let me make it up to you—for him?"

"But you may not want me here—when you know—"

He was looking at her now, his green eyes on her. She saw that he had become her friend. And she needed him so desperately. She needed all he had to give, the old house, the security.

"I'm not very—I mean I should earn my living. But I don't know how. There isn't anything I can do!" she said wildly.

"But that wasn't what you were going to tell me, was it, Nora?"

"No. It wasn't."

If she told him that she had only married Nicholas because she was afraid, he would despise her. No, she couldn't tell him!

"You're not afraid to tell me?" he asked.

She caught her breath and turned her face away. If she should tell him, how that cold look would change his face; he, who had never had anything to be afraid of.

She did not tell him. But instead she poured out to him all the story of these last years, the wandering life, the borrowing, the petty devices by which they had lived.

"My father is a painter," she ended, "but I suppose he's really more of—a tramp. And that's all I am."

"Are you?" Jon asked gently. "I like tramps. Do you remember years ago when I first saw you you thought he was so wonderful."

"He's so generous, he'd give away anything he had—and take away anything you had," she smiled. "Julian is a darling."

But Jon did not want to talk about her father.

"Do you remember the funny old things I was playing with—in England—"

"And the garden?"

"And old miss—what's her name who was so shocked at us?"

They went on with: "Do you remember?" until the English rectory with its faded chintz and shabby books, was bright with their memories.

She thought he had forgotten; but he had remembered. Wings unfolded in her breast. The sky and grass became illumined. How everything had changed as she walked back beside him toward the old Dutch house. Her home, her trees, her sky, her clouds!

She understood now why he had seemed so cold and hard. He had instinctively hidden from her his deep and terrible pain. It was that that was drawing them close to each other now. He was as unlike Nicholas as only brothers can be. But he seemed more akin to her than anyone she had ever known, except her father.

"I know you won't tell anyone what I have told you?"

He meant, of course, that she should not tell Damon; the smile she gave him was her promise.

In the drawing room Damon was at the tea table, with a splendid-looking old man beside her. Jon took Nora up to him and Damon's father looking down into her pretty fresh face, said, "I hear you're coming to stay with us? That's what we need, youth and freshness about us as we grow older."

Damon colored faintly and asked Jon if he would make cocktails while Mr. Van Vorst drew Nora aside.

"A very strange family." He shook his head. "Jon's mother, A lovely woman but—had a passion for letting things free. She'd buy birds, just to let them out of their cages. Yes, very strange."

As he went on talking Jon glanced at Nora and smiled. At that intimate smile of understanding her heart leaped up. She loved them! She scarcely listened to what old Mr. Van Vorst was saying, intent on those two beside the tea table. Jon was leaning toward Damon and Nora caught only a few words

"—wretched tramp of a father—no upbringing—"

She saw Damon look up and nod. In the twilight room she saw Jon's face arrogant and cool. The treachery of those few words burned her like red hot oil poured into her heart.

He had told Damon even while Nora was in the room all that she had poured out to him in that intimate talk. "A wretched tramp of a father!" He pitied her and he was ashamed of her. He was taking her into his home only because it was a duty left him by the dead man.

Nora sat listening to Mr. Van Vorst talking or rather she pretended to listen, while Jon's treachery cut deeper and deeper. When she looked across at him it was hard to believe he had betrayed her, for his clear-cut features made his face seem fine and sensitive.

Jon smiled at her but she looked away. He was thinking what a brave spirited creature she was. A tramp, like her father, he thought, but there was nothing derogatory in the thought; rather he felt an admiration for that free wandering life she had lived, for the sturdy philosophy that had borne her up. He would like to know Julian Lake, he thought.

It was time for Nora to leave, she told Damon. No, she would not stay to dinner.

"In a week then," Damon asked, leaning forward to kiss her lightly on the cheek, "you will come to stay with us?"

Nora whispered yes. She was conscious of Jon against the door watching her. She barely touched his hand when she said good-by. A car was waiting for her before the house.

She was still living in that other world, still seeing the old house in the twilight when she reached Aunt Em's. Its solidity seemed to her the symbol of all she desired. It was deep rooted in the soil, with the hills folded behind it, and the woods shouldering it. It seemed to her to be the very stronghold of that emotional surety that she so passionately longed for.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TOMORROW is Saturday, and somehow I don't care at all. There a lot of things a fella can do on Saturday.

I got out of bed and let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth and put on my short britches and went down stairs and grabbed a piece of cheese and some bread and a piece of cold round steak cut thin to sort of stay my stummick till breakfast was ready and took it out to the barn and milked some warm milk into the milk pail to wash it down with and was all done and started milking by the time the bunch was there, and the girls came and Youniss said her father looked at the door the Lost Bag of Tripe had kicked the glass out of and looked discouraged and asted Youniss if she wouldn't just as soon cut loose from our bunch and get a couple of earthquakes and a wildcat to play with.

He said he would have to take the door all apart to get a new glass in it. I don't think anyone could play with an earthquake, but a wildcat can be tamed. I asted my grandfather if it couldn't when we were eating breakfast, and he said maybe it could if a fella had time. He said one time he was spending a few weeks in a hunting cabin in the woods because he had a spat with his wife, and he had been up on one of the lakes fishing and didn't get back to the cabin till late at night and he was dog tired, so he went in and slammed the window shut in the dark and bolted the door and chucked off his clothes and got into bed and pulled the covers over himself and a wildcat had got in the window and was in bed and it got busy as soon as my grandfather got in with it, and at first he thought it was his wife that had found out where he was staying so he didn't fight back, but pretty soon he had to and when they had went out of bed all in a bundle and separated and he saw the wildcat's eyes over in the corner he made a light, and then they started all over again, and he didn't think anyone could ever be as sorry as he was that they had shut a window. He said he finely got the door open and him and the wildcat made a dash for outdoors at the same time, and the wildcat went out riding on his shoulders and got away before he had time to try to tame it. He said he went home, the next day, because a wife couldn't be no worse than a wildcat.

My mother, who used to be my grandfather's wife's little girl, said she didn't believe a word of it. My grandfather said maybe she didn't but it was a good story anyhow. I said maybe the wildcat was some little wildcat's ant. Then my ant said if it was she was sorry for it because she had that experience and it was enough to make anything peevish. So then I grabbed my hat and we all went to school. I would like to be a wildcat for a little while. They can certainly climb trees.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

THE temptation to "let well enough alone," in the matter of the letter to Jack Bickett grew stronger as I prepared for bed. I knew, of course, that the cumulative fatigue of the day was having its way with me, but when I had settled myself in bed, I realized that I was in that paradoxical state known as "too tired to sleep," and the thought of having to get out of bed so early in the morning was actual torture to my tautened nerves.

I switched on my reading lamp and took up a magazine. But I could not fix my attention upon the type, and I was lying listlessly with it beneath my hands when Lillian's light tap sounded on the door.

"Come in!" I called, and she pushed the door open, closing it immediately after her. Then she came up to the bed and looked down at me.

"I thought so," she said in a low tone. "You're completely done out, too tired to sleep. Look here! What is there about that stunt I can't do tomorrow? Why can't I telephone that woman?"

"Meticulous Martha"

"You don't know Martha Halkett," I answered, making an effort to smile up at her worried face. "'Meticulous,' that overworked word, was originally invented to describe Miss Halkett's methods of thought. She will have to consult the Bible, the blue book, the book of etiquette and parliamentary procedure, to say nothing of the postal laws before she will consent to deviate from the written instructions I gave her."

I was conscious that I was libeling sane, resourceful Martha Halkett, but I could not bring myself to let even Lillian have a hand in this unpleasant business of Jack's letter. I had brought the thing on myself and I would see it through. I told myself grimly, though aware of the absurdity of my attitude.

"I'm sure you're libeling the woman," Lillian said, echoing my thought, "but with those set little lines around your mouth, I know there's nothing to be done. So I'll get you up in the morning, but first I'll put you to sleep tonight. And I'm not going to disturb Katherine either."

"Oh, no!" I exclaimed in a panic. "She'd be in here first thing in the morning to be sure I remained in bed."

"Of course. That's what I'm going to hold over your head in righteous blackmail, so that you'll obey me implicitly. I'm going to get you a cup of hot milk."

I caught her sleeve as she turned away.

"But you'll promise 'Scout honor,'" I said, "that you'll waken me in the morning."

"'Cross my heart' and 'hope to die'" she quoted.

"You won't have any trouble waking me," I said with confidence, nor did she. Thanks to the hot milk and the sedative, I slept soundly all night long, and wakened refreshed, fully five minutes before she came to call me.

"One hundred per cent improvement," she pronounced, after a steady scrutiny of me. "I tell you I'm some physician."

"Have the youngsters gone yet?" I asked.

"Just finished breakfast, but all ready to start," she answered. "Dicky wants to have them get away before the little boys wake up. Bless his heart! He's going to let them ride horseback today to their hearts' content. That will more than make up to them for not going fishing."

The Boys Protest

"Harry couldn't have taken them anyway—he wouldn't have wanted the responsibility, even if—"

"Even if Hank hadn't put in his measly little objection," she said briskly. "Of course, it's perfectly natural for them not to want the youngsters tagging along—but Hank ought to have more tact than to voice it. However, I suppose that's too much to expect of the modern boy. Is there anything I can do to help you?" as I climbed out of bed and into my bathrobe and slippers.

"Not a thing. I'll wait for my shower till I get back and go to bed again, according to my orders." I smiled at her. "And I'll be downstairs very shortly."

"I'll try to delay the departure till you get down," she said as she went out of the room. "The hardy pioneers are worth the once over."

I agreed with her when I came downstairs a few minutes later to find the fishing party assembled by the farm-work car.

All of the party were in khaki, and thanks to their own good sense and the theories of suitable dress which Lillian and I have drilled into them, Mary and Marion while wearing knickers and shirts as did the boys, did not spoil the effect and make themselves supremely ridiculous by wearing silk stockings and high-heeled shoes as do so many girls in the country. But their low-heeled sport shoes and their heavy sport hose were exceedingly modish as were their berets, all harmonizing in color, and I gave a little smile of prideful admiration at the attractive picture they made.

"Well! I guess we're ready to start," Harry Underwood said, when from the window above us came a startled wail.

"Are you goin' fishin' and not take us?" Junior and Roderick leaned perilously from the casement window in the upper hall and chorused their chagrin.

City Manager Form of Government Proposed for Marion

Speaker Makes Suggestion at Sawyer Civic Meet

Large Auditorium To House Convention Delegates Cited as Another Marion Need; 72 Workers at Seventh Conference Called by Group Leader.

The city manager plan of municipal government, a large auditorium capable of seating several thousand persons, and more loyal patronage of home town merchants are among the things advocated for a "better Marion" at the seventh of a series of civic welfare meetings last night at the Sawyer sanatorium.

Only 72 workers braved inclement weather to attend the meeting, the smallest in the series.

Jones Makes Suggestion

Need of the city manager form of government for Marion was suggested by W. T. Jones, Marion real estate dealer. Such a plan would increase the efficiency of municipal government, he said.

Touching on Marion from the realtor's standpoint, Mr. Jones predicted a lull in home building during the next few years. He forecast increasing popularity for home modernization or remodeling.

Internal buying, or the spending of Marion-made money in Marion was urged by Thomas A. Cooper of the Marion Printing Co. A greater spirit of loyalty toward Marion merchants and institutions was asked by Mr. Cooper.

Possibilities of Marion as a convention city if it possessed an auditorium capable of seating several thousand persons were pointed out by C. A. Klunk of Hotel Marion.

Both the suggestion of a city manager and the need of a large auditorium have been frequently mentioned in the hundreds of questionnaires returned to White Oaks farm in the last few weeks, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, who presided last night, said.

Urges Cooperation

Robert F. Williams, representing the Bindley Grocery Co., stressed cooperation as a factor of civic success. He asserted that cooperation is the basic principle on which any state or nation is founded, and prescribed large quantities of cooperation to help cure any city's ills.

Support of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. in the boost Marion movement was pledged by C. E. Sechrist. Clarence A. Bolin of the Marion Foundry Co. and Charles A. Moore of the United Commercial Travelers' association also pledged active support of the groups they represented.

Those present last night swelled the total number of persons to attend the seven meetings to 1,193. Another group of 964 has been invited to a similar meeting next Tuesday night. The next two or three meetings, like the last two, will be devoted to Marion workers, whose numbers made it impossible to entertain them all at one time.

New Farm Credit Plan Is Explained by Official

System Now Under Consideration for Marion County Regarded by Lincoln as Valuable Aid to Agriculture.

The article below, written by Murray D. Lincoln of Columbus, secretary-treasurer of the Farm Bureau Credit Corporation, is of especial interest to farmers in Marion county in view of plans now under way to establish a branch of the new loan service in this county. Mr. Lincoln is expected to be here before June 1 to discuss plans with farm leaders of the county.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 8—The problem of rural credit is not something that has sprung up suddenly. It has been with us for years, but it was only comparatively recently that anything like effective steps to supply a solution have been taken.

First came the Federal Farm Land banks operating through local loan associations and the Joint Stock Land banks lending directly to individuals. These banks have done good work, but they have never been purely cooperative, and their operations have been effectually tied up in a mass of red tape. The Federal Intermediate Credit banks have also helped by lending to cooperative organizations.

It remained for the drouth and depression of 1930 to bring about the first action that provided for strong farmer-owned and truly cooperative agricultural credit institutions.

On Dec. 20, 1930, congress as a result of the financial straits imposed upon thousands of farmers by the drouth, storms and general depression, approved public resolution No. 112 for relief of the farmers in the drouth-stricken areas by authorizing loans for productive farm purposes.

Act Passed Feb. 14

On Feb. 14, 1931, congress passed an act, public resolution No. 566, which amended public resolution No. 112, by appropriating $20,000,000 "to make loans to individuals . . . for the purpose of assisting in forming local agricultural credit corporations, livestock loan companies, or like organizations . . ." These companies are empowered to make loans to individuals for productive farm purposes—purchases of seed, fertilizer, feed, etc.

I believe that with existing credit facilities—banks, and so on—the new agricultural credit corporations, and the credit unions as provided in house bill No. 139 adopted by the general assembly this term, the farmer's credit needs will be fairly well taken care of.

Here is the way the agricultural credit corporations will operate, briefly.

A group wishes to form a credit corporation. This is done in the usual way, by filing articles of incorporation and receiving a charter from the state.

Since the essence of this plan is that the corporation be farmer-owned and farmer-controlled, the stock in the corporation is purchased and owned by farmers themselves or organizations of farmers.

A farmer who wishes to buy stock in such a corporation if he does not have the cash to do so, may borrow the money from the federal government through the government's state advisory loan committee, operating under supervision of the United States department of agriculture.

Headquarters in Columbus

In Ohio this committee has headquarters at 20 East Broad street, Columbus.

This committee will lend, upon proper security, to the applicant, money to purchase the stock in the credit corporation for a term of one year at interest of only three and one-half per cent.

At the end of the year it may be found desirable to extend the loan and the government may do this at the same interest rate but no loan will be extended beyond the second year.

The agricultural credit corporation once formed and operating will lend money to the individual farmer for his needs to buy livestock, finance a marketing operation, and so on. It gets the money for these loans from the Federal Intermediate Credit bank, with which it discounts the borrowers' notes. Its rate to the borrower may be as high as three per cent above the discount rate. Under the law, the corporation can borrow from the Intermediate Credit bank several times the amount of the paid-in and unimpaired capital and surplus but no more than 10 times that sum.

I am confident the agricultural credit corporation is destined to play an important part in immediate agricultural progress.

TO EXHIBIT WORK

MORRAL, May 8—The annual manual training exhibit of the Morral High school will be held at the school building tonight.

Tom Churchill, former University of Oklahoma star, recently scored 32 points in a track meet for the Albuquerque Athletic club.

HOOVER MESSAGE IN HOSPITAL BULLETIN

President Sanctions National Observance To Be Held May 12.

Marion City hospital has received its copy of "The Bulletin" of the American Hospital association for the month of May containing President Hoover's message to hospitals on National Hospital day, which will be celebrated Tuesday.

City hospital is planning for a reception from 2 to 4 p. m. for its former patients and other visitors and for all mothers whose babies have been born since last hospital day. The Woman's Board will serve tea to all visitors.

The President's message from the White House, dated April 17, reads as follows:

"Hospitals are now carrying a heavy burden, being pressed by ever more patients and for more free service. They are meeting the demands upon them courageously, but this year particularly they need the cooperation and support of the public.

"It is particularly fitting to call the attention of all people at this time to these conditions as May 12 is National Hospital day, a day set apart for everyone to visit and become familiar with what their hospitals are doing and what they mean to their respective communities.

"This work has my hearty support."

4-RUN LEAD MEANS LITTLE TO REDS AS CUBS RALLY TO WIN

Cincinnati Lacks Essentials of Good Ball Club, Despite Numerous Shifts.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON JR
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds appear to a few important parts of a good ball club, despite Manager Dan Howley's efforts to shape up something like a winner.

Howley made a few more changes yesterday, putting Harold Henrietta, Bonnegut county athlete, in left field and Jimmy Clyde Dresden out to an early start but the final picture of what Wally Roettger and Ott Hornung note are grooming for left field was not pleasing.

Joe Stripp, a .300 hitter last year, has the best mark of the infielders, .368, while Clyde Dresden, who was expected to do some slugging is batting above .300.

The Reds pounding also has been ineffective. Al Johnson did some good pitching against the Cubs yesterday only to weaken and Chicago hammered out five successive hits in the eighth to tie the score at 4-4. The Cubs pushed over another run off Ray Kolp in the seventh to win, 5-4, for Cincinnati's fifteenth defeat in 17 games.

The league leading St. Louis Cardinals won their seventh game in a row yesterday, combining good pitching and powerful hitting to beat Pittsburgh 11 to 5. Jess Haines gave the Pirates only seven hits.

The St. Louis Browns, by far less successful than their tormentors, so far did about as well yesterday. They got started in the fifth inning and pounded four Cleveland pitchers for a total of 17 hits and a 10 to 4 victory.

Vic Sorrell of Detroit also recorded his first win of the year, holding the Chicago White Sox to nine hits as the Tigers won 6 to 1.

The eastern clubs of the American League had an open date as they began their first western trip of the year and New York and Boston in the National also were not scheduled. Brooklyn's game at Philadelphia was rained out.

Berg Meets Herrera in Comeback Fight Tonight

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 6.—Jack (Kid) Berg hits the comeback trail against Tony Herrera tonight in Madison Square Garden's first indoor show in weeks.

Knocked out in three rounds by Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, in Chicago recently in the biggest upset of the season, Berg will start all over again against Herrera, a stiff right hand puncher from El Paso, Texas.

CLOSE FIGHT LOOMS FOR CHAMPIONSHIP IN INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE

Quartet of Entries in Running for Title; Two Others Possible Dark Horses.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor The Star

With [illegible] the Industrial league [illegible] a close fight for the championship of the Marion industrial recreational league appears likely this year with the leaguers making their initial appearance on Monday, May 16. There is a strong possibility that the Hoover Manufacturing Five will be the most formidable team the league has ever had, but the Marion Steam Shovel nine and the Erie Foundry quintet will be strong contenders for the honors. The Erie Foundry outfit is the strongest team in the league at present, but the Steam Shovel nine is a team of veterans and is capable of a surprise game.

From all indications the battle for the league championship will center largely around these teams. However at least two of the others are sufficiently strong to create interest with enough opposition to keep the final outcome of the race in doubt until after the close of the season.

Second Title Unlikely

For several reasons the Erie Foundrymen, winners of both the Industrial league and the city championship last season, do not look strong enough to repeat for the second crown in a row. Playing a winner in Marion recreational ball is a hazardous sport at all times, but attempting to choose the 1931 only industrial champion before the race is even started is nothing short of absurd. Play in the circuit is always featured by [illegible] contests.

The Hoover Manufacturing Five Foundrymen, C. D. & M. Electric and Marion Steam Shovel nines are all potential first division teams. It is impossible to classify the Silk Mills and Ohio Fuel Gas company teams inasmuch as they have never competed in Marion recreational ball. On paper neither the Silk Mills nor the Gas company, particularly the latter, have much chance to finish with the leaders.

Second Division Teams

The Fairfield Engineering company and C. & O. Railroad teams are almost certain occupants of second division berths. Their exact final positions depend more on the strength displayed by the Gas company and Silk Mills than on any other one thing. Neither of them have enough punch to compete on an even basis with the four league favorites.

There is not very much to distinguish between the four teams picked to fight it out for the championship. The Erie Foundrymen 1930 champs have a flock of "fence busters" in the batting lineup but the pitching problems is likely to prove extremely troublesome. Don Shoemaker, the only dependable hurler on the 1930 team, will not be on the mound this year. Should his successors come through in [illegible] which it is capable the team which defeats it will be the league champs in 1931.

The Marion Steam Shovel always a mighty factor in the race is stronger this season than formerly due to the combining of the commercial and league teams. The Shovel will present a well balanced lineup and one that will cause many a bad evening for opposing teams before the season is completed.

The C. D. & M. Electricians got an ace in the hole recently with the addition of Bob Gamble to the hurling staff. Gamble should provide the necessary punch to put the team in the race but even with the former Fairfield star on the hill the Electricians are probably the weakest of the quartet of four favored entries.

TRY'N BEAT IT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, C. H. O., May 6.—The records a week of a fish that didn't get away.

George Poole of New Holland, near here, yesterday angled a brown as ordinary size and line into the water of Deer creek, presently a hundred at the line almost unreeling him from the stream's bank.

After a give-and-take battle [illegible] of four hours George hauled [illegible] a 21½ pound spoon bill catfish.

WILL DRIVE AGAIN

Billy Arnold, victor last year in the Indianapolis Memorial racing classic, has been named to pilot a car again this year. Arnold, one of the youngest "big time" drivers in the game, is also one of the most daring. He missed setting a new track record by only a few hundredths of a mile last year.

17 STARTERS LIKELY FOR DERBY CLASSIC

Kentucky Race Entrants Arriving at Churchill Downs Daily.

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6.—A field of 17 starters—the country's outstanding three-year-olds—loomed as a certainty today for the fifty-seventh annual running of the Kentucky Derby May 16.

The arrival of William Ziegler's Brush and Gallant Knight, Mars Twenty Grand, Surf Board, Morvich, Dauber and Argie would be stripped early next week swelled the prospective field beyond early expectations.

Cold weather and a heavy track kept the derby eligibles from working out yesterday but they were to compete in a special one mile race today. The winner of this event, and the victor in the Preakness at Pimlico Saturday, probably will go to the barrier joint favorites to capture derby honors.

Fight Looms Over Site of Olympic Field Trials

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 6.—A bitter fight over the scene of the final tryout for places on the 1932 American Olympic track and field team today appeared certain with Chicago and the Pacific coast the combatants.

The trials originally were awarded to Soldier field by the Olympic track and field committee, but Pacific coast A.A.U. officials have contended that their section was the logical place for the event and have prepared to put up a battle when the committee meets in Chicago, May 16. Chicago interests headed by Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic union and president of the American Olympic association, are ready to fight to keep the trials here.

TILDEN SEES LITTLE CHANCE OF REGAINING DAVIS CUP THIS YEAR

Veteran Tennis Star Believes French Too Strong for U. S. Team.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 6.—Big Bill Tilden, veteran tennis star, [illegible] Americas chances of regaining the Davis cup this year.

Big Bill said that it will require the best cup aggregation we have had since the United States [illegible] Frank Shields and Ellsworth Vines were singles competitors, it is to them and what [illegible] Davis cup eventually but not [illegible] Not with Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra around.

If Wilmer Allison arranges his round and goes to Europe this season he probably will pair with Johnny Van Ryn again. Together they form a great combination. If Allison remains in the United States there is George Lott to replace him. Lott undoubtedly is the finest doubles player in America and one of the best in the world.

As to these constantly recurring reports that Mrs. Helen Wills Moody will turn professional, Big Bill said he thought she would desert amateur ranks only in the event that she signs a motion picture contract.

Champ in First Ring Appearance Since Regaining Title Month Ago.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 6.—Fistic variety in the form of two champions and a Chicago favorite will adorn Chicago stadium's first three-dollar top program tonight.

In half of a double windup young Jack Thompson, Oakland, Calif., Negro who is wearing the world welterweight crown for the second time, will meet tough Bucky Lawless of Auburn, N. Y., in a ten-rounder. In the other half of the feature, King Levinsky, the former fish-monger, will attempt to wipe out a recent decision defeat administered by Emmett Rocco of Ellwood City, Pa., in less than the scheduled 10 rounds.

Thompson also will be out to redeem a defeat at the hands of Lawless, and today was a favorite to do it. It will be Thompson's first start since he regained the welter title from Tommy Freeman at Cleveland last month.

The other champion on the bill is Herr Max Schmeling, ruler of the heavyweights, who will close his exhibition tour in a four-round exhibition against sparring partners.

BULLS FORCE SLIGHT CLIMB

Rediscount Rate Cut One Per Cent; Market Continues Sluggish Trend.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 8—Bullish efforts in the merchandising shares gave a sluggish stock market an upward slant today.

Three financial markets made no pronounced response to the reduction of the New York rediscount rate from 2 to 1½ per cent, although bonds continued to improve. In stocks, fluctuations have been steadily narrowing since the selling climax of last week, and trades took advantage of relatively satisfactory chain store sales reports for April to try to start a rally.

Woolworth yesterday's bull favorite, continued its advance, and was joined by Grand-Silver, both issues gaining more than two points as did Macy W. T. Grant, Kroger, Marshall Field, Kresge, Best, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck, were firm. The list had a temporary sinking spell in the morning, with the rails notably heavy, but outside of the carrier group, losses were largely cancelled later.

Miscellaneous issues selling up a point or two included U. S. Steel, General Motors Radio, American Can, Gillette, Standard of California, Union Carbide Bethlehem, American Tobacco "B," Reynolds "B," Consolidated Gas, Du Pont and Coca Cola. Hershey rose three and Auburn five. In the rails, Union Pacific sold off more than four.

A tabulation showing aggregate sales of 35 chain store systems for the first four months of the year showed a reduction of only three per cent from the like period of last year. In view of the decline in prices, and the slackening of chain store expansion, this line of activity has held up better than several others. The mail order companies, however, made a less favorable showing, the aggregate for three concerns showing a reduction of about 11¼ per cent.

COLUMBUS LOSES TO ST. PAUL CLUB, 1 TO 0

Red Birds Drop Well-Played Game as Catcher Drops Ball.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 8—St. Paul, which shares with Louisville the distinction of having won six American Association championships, but has not had one since 1924, is eyeing the 1931 pennant with high hopes of grabbing it.

Today St. Paul was two games in front of Louisville, which has not fared so well on its jaunt through the western end of the league.

St. Paul yesterday gained a full game by defeating Columbus while Louisville was taking a beating from Kansas City.

The Saints had to go 10 innings to win one of the best played games of the season, 1 to 0, from the Red Birds and were aided by an error in scoring the single run of the contest. With Anderson on third Roettger bounced to Bedore who threw to the plate in time to get Anderson. Catcher Hinkle, however, dropped the ball, and Anderson was safe.

Ragged base running, inability to bunch hits and defensive laxity were responsible for Louisville's 6 to 5 defeat by Kansas City.

The rest of the program was rained and frozen out.

REFORMED VS. BISHOPS

The First Reformed recreation ball team will play the Epworth Bishops today at 6 p. m. on the Garfield park diamond. Rain yesterday forced the cancellation of the Bishop-John Clark tilt at the Shovel grounds.

WHEAT AGAIN IN DOWNTREND

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 8—Moisture reports from Canada gave an early downward trend to grain today. There was talk also that the government crop report due after the close would indicate a domestic winter wheat yield large enough to take care of all home requirements and leave spring wheat exclusively for export. Opening at ¼ cent off to a up wheat afterward held near to the initial range. Corn started unchanged to ¼ lower and fluctuated but little.

Rallies which took place in wheat prices were associated with word that in various sections of spring crop territory the rains were barely sufficient to lay the dust. A further strengthening influence was announcement that Canadian wheat supplies in all positions suggested a total of 165,000,000 bushels available for export and carryover, compared with 181,000,000 a year ago. North American exports for the week 10,172,000 were about double those of either the week previous or a year ago.

Liverpool dispatches carried predictions of only light shipments of wheat to Great Britain. Doubt was expressed that Russia could continue to export during May and June at the rate shown last week 1,040,000 bushels. Russian stocks of wheat were reported small and new wheat in Russia not likely to be available in the south until July. Corn and oats largely followed the changes in wheat.

Provisions were responsive to hog market downturns.

Afternoon Nap Best for Children, Tests Show

By International News Service.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—What happens when we sleep?

Between the time we trust ourselves to the comforting arms of Morpheus and the moment of arising, refreshed, the next day what occurs?...what observable bodily movements do we undergo?

A group of trained scientists at the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research were asked to answer this question, and their investigation, recently completed revealed some extraordinary facts.

For instance:

If any one thinks that he or she retires at night in one position and awakens the following morning in the identical posture, he or she is sadly mistaken. Investigators disclosed that among all the "sleepers" who submitted to the experiment at least 20 "gross changes" of posture during a given night.

Least active sleepers—the attention of younger of the weaker sex is asked—were a group of unmarried women of college age.

Each change of pose one takes is well chosen when considered with reference to the irritation set up by previous poses.

Conditions under which the novel experiment was carried on was unique.

Twenty-one adults and eight children submitted to the nightly analysis of their sleeping lives. No bed covering could be used in the tests naturally since every motion of the individual had to be scrutinized, shot and tabulated. Temperature was kept around 80 degrees Fahrenheit.

A photographic recorder, used in the sleeping investigation, was specially devised and perfected by G. E. Weingand.

Light, of course, also was essential to the conditionty of the study, and therefore considerable amount of illumination was focussed on the exhibits during the entire period of the experiment. But according to the scientists, all the sleepers made quick adaptation to this and the light, "quickly ceased to disturb them or to bring out gestures of protection." Which can be told to the party who maintains he "cannot sleep with the light on."

Poor bedding causes variety in the posture pattern, but no change in the number of positions taken, it was disclosed.

Concerning the sleep of children some important revelations were made of interest to the inquiring mother.

The afternoon rest of children is much quieter than their nocturnal rest. Also the nocturnal rest of children is hardly affected by their afternoon "nap." Therefore, the afternoon rest really provides clear gain for the child, the experimenters found. In fact, the report stated, the afternoon nap is the preferable way of getting extra rest, if it be required.

Daily Proverb—"The wise man should be prepared for everything that does not lie within his control."

The legislative situation over in France is evidently normal. Anyway, the summer session of the French parliament opened with a fist fight.

New York state is trying to pick an official state bird. It is worth noting in this connection that Mr. Seabury is doing his best to give her a select assortment of jail birds.

President Machado of Cuba says he doesn't plan to resign. In fact, he says it so plainly that he arouses the conviction that he couldn't be dragged out of his job by a yoke of oxen.

The General Electric research laboratory has developed a new mechanical eye which will pierce an average fog for a distance of two miles. No, Geraldine, you are in error in assuming that it might prove valuable in some of our legislative bodies. It is intended for use in penetrating physical fogs only, not mental.

From New York City comes word that vice arrests there show a sharp decline. Is New York becoming more moral or is it a case of a greater lapse on the part of her police department?

The corporate fund of the city of Chicago was exhausted, Tuesday, when 18,000 of the 27,000 employes of the city received their pay. A situation like that would have afforded basis for a real news story a few years ago, but so many cities are in the same financial boat these days that it is commonplace.

France has launched a plan to offset the proposed Austro-German customs union. That which France held reprehensible in Germany and Austria is perfectly proper on the part of France, seemingly.

It develops that the recent Armenian earthquake was a major disaster, resulting in deaths of 459 residents in twenty-seven villages, the injury of 11,153 others, to say nothing of the killing of 7,000 horses and cattle and 15,000 sheep and goats. Isn't it about time for old Mother Earth to recover from her indisposition, even though the recovery be but temporary?

Le Baron Cooke remarks that "there are quite as many banal autumn poems as there are spring." But by autumn we usually become accustomed, to a degree at least, to the punishment the poets inflict upon us.

Representative Robert H. Clancy, of Michigan, charges Prohibition Director A. W. W. Woodcock with unfairness in sending an unwarranted number—a horde is the way he puts it—of prohibition agents to the Detroit district. From Mr. Clancy's concern we take it that there are up there an exceptional number of "law-abiding citizens" who "can drink it or let it alone."

It Matters Not How.

The deliberations of the joint legislative taxation committee of the state over automobile taxation show clearly that it matters not how, but how much, the automobile shall be taxed. The proposal to license cars according to weight, which was advanced and discussed a short time ago, has given way to another plan to boost the existing horsepower rates and increase the number of classifications. The primary purpose of the proposal is to derive more money, not to tax more equitably.

Revenue from the tax would be divided thus: twenty-five per cent. to the state highway department; twenty-five per cent. to the municipalities, on the basis of motor vehicle registration; and fifty per cent. to counties. Three per cent. of the county's share would be divided equally among the eighty-eight counties, the remaining forty-seven per cent. would be divided according to motor vehicle registration. Of the forty-seven per cent., slightly more than half would be placed in the general revenue fund, and the remainder in the road fund.

This is, of course, merely a proposal. If ever is to become more than a proposal it will have to overcome a well-established conception of what should and should not be done with money derived from direct taxation on automobiles. Granting half the county's share of the money for general purposes is an idea foreign to the established practice.

Sufferance of heavy automobile taxation depends largely on assurance that the money is to be used for purposes of road construction and maintenance. The automobile owner has an understandable fear of what may happen if his license fees are to be used for the support of costly school systems and the increasingly expensive machinery of the government. He believes the money he pays for the privilege of driving his car should be spent to make that privilege a more enjoyable one, and for nothing else. Right or wrong, that's his idea, and he'll stick to it.

A Gallant Figure in Exile.

Exile has not lessened the deep regard of Alfonso XIII for the welfare of Spain. Believing himself still to be the sovereign of the Spanish people and intending so to hold himself until the cortes legalizes the apparent will of the people as expressed at the municipal elections which caused him to quit the country, he has made public through an interview published in a Madrid paper his hope that the Monarchists make no attempt to block the course of republican government and he therein gives notice that an attempt in his name to incite the people against the republic or to overthrow it by force of arms will be against his will and desire. If he returns to Spain as king it must be by the will of the Spanish people, freely expressed.

Like many other papers, as made evident by their editorial utterances this paper has long admired not only the courage and daring of Alfonso but his evident desire at all times to do that which he honestly believed to be best for the Spanish people. Contrary to an occasional allusion to his departure from Spain as a flight we have never felt that he left hurriedly as he did because of fears for his personal safety, but rather because he feared that his presence upon Spanish soil might lead to internal strife with consequent bloodshed. His entire life from the days of his young manhood up to the time of his departure for France precludes thought of lack of courage on his part or fears for his life. He far too often exposed himself to danger to make that view tenable.

And now, an exile, he stands before the world as one who places the welfare of his one-time land above and beyond his personal advantage, as one who would not have the land which at the polls turned against him suffer from internal strife incited in his name for the purpose of returning him to his one-time throne.

In exile, Alfonso XIII appears as gallant a figure as he did when he sat upon the throne, head of the proudest court in all Christendom.

"The cynic," says Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, "tells us that the renunciation of war is mere words, so are the Ten Commandments." But look, doctor, what the world of today is doing to the Ten Commandments!

From Des Moines, Iowa, comes the announcement that twenty-one Mid-West farm organizations with an aggregate membership of 286,000 farmers approve the federal farm board and the national marketing act. We felt right along that some supporters of the two plans would develop sooner or later were the search for them made sufficiently comprehensive.

Nature's Wonderland.

If the recommendation of the Yellowstone park boundary commission appointed by President Hoover avails with congress, not only will the Idaho reclamation interests be denied their request for a reservoir site of 17,280 acres in the Bechler River basin of the park, but 52,480 acres will be added to the park area and forty square miles of ridges and valleys along the Snake river, which it has been proposed to congress should be eliminated, will be retained.

It is also being urged by many prominent nature lovers that the Bridges Lake and Upper Yellowstone River regions be added to the park, but these recommendations did not come to the official attention of the commission, and did not receive its approval.

With the possible exception of the Grand canyon of the Colorado, Yellowstone park is the world's most wonderful exhibit of the unique in nature's handiwork. The number and variety of its natural wonders can be found in no other area upon the face of the earth, and for every geyser big or small, for every boiling pool, for every pit of boiling mud, there is a bit of nature's artistry in beauty. The Teton range of mountains adjoining it on the south has recently been preserved to posterity by presidential action in making it a monument. To the same end, the recommended area may well be added. Since the country has adopted the motor car as a means of transportation the wonders and beauties of Yellowstone park have been viewed by hundreds of thousands to whom they previously were unattainable. Each year the volume of traffic increases. The adding of any attractions to this wonderland which may increase its appeal may well be considered favorably. To sacrifce any part of it to reclamation interests is unthinkable.

The department of labor announces that more aliens left the country in March than the number entering it, the figures being 17,444 and 16,344 respectively. Under existing conditions there is nothing about these figures to produce tears.

The navy general board has submitted to Secretary Adams its recommendation for a four-year building program calling for the authorization of approximately $400,000,000 to be expended on new cruisers, aircraft carriers, destroyers, submarines and sub-destroyers, which is our idea of a mighty modest recommendation—for the navy general board.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas has announced that he hasn't the slightest intention of being a candidate on the Republican ticket with President Hoover in 1932, from which it may be seen that it doesn't always break against Mr. Hoover.

Isn't the decision of Columbia university to cut down the salaries of athletic coaches to a degree where they will be at least in sight of the salary of an average member of the faculty a bit radical? Certainly Columbia can not hope to achieve greatly in the cause of education if it offers no more appealing reward to a coach than it gives to a mere professor.

The Seabury investigation in New York City has disclosed that organized slot-machine gambling means the owners of the machines a profit of approximately $20,000,000 a year, and it is reasonable that people will keep right on playing them despite the fact that the [illegible] per cent. of the [illegible] Truly there is some sense in that old scriptural line about the fool and his money being soon parted.

THE WAY TO FIX IT.

Editorial Opinion.

MR. SNOWDEN'S PLAN.

The so-called challenge to the private ownership of land issued by Chancellor Snowden, may sound like pretty thoroughgoing socialism upon first reading of the newspaper account of the speech in parliament. But a little consideration robs the chancellor's remarks of some of their extreme flavor.

Mr. Snowden was dealing with a situation which does not exist in the United States, where there is real estate for all and to spare, and anybody who wants to be thrifty can save up enough money to buy a lot, or a garden plot or a farm, and in some places, at very low price.

In Great Britain, where large tracts are in the hands of a few, and what is left doesn't comprise over much ground, things are different. A person sometimes is obliged to remain a tenant simply because there isn't any real estate on the market fit for his use. The "dukes," as Mr. Snowden puts it, are in possession and decline to let go, and the use of land unquestionably is restricted.

It is to this restriction that the chancellor objects and for which he seeks a remedy. But being a practical man, he is not advocating drastic upsetting, or impossible, visionary measures.

Instead of talking about confiscation and redistribution, he proposes a tax, quite a substantial one, apparently to be applied in full measure only to such areas as are not now devoted to a productiveness that helps the country. This tax he calls a "rental" required by the nation, so technically denying the right of proprietorship to the big owners, but in practice, not undertaking to upset the order of things. The tax is not to apply to agricultural land "as long as it has no higher value than its cultivation value." In other wards, it applies only where "real estate" values exist, and the small farmer, who has a title to the ground he works, is left alone.

Mr. Snowden's program is an extremely interesting one, both because of its implications, and because of its conservatism, and it provides one more indication of the bold resourcefulness of the gentleman fathering it.—Detroit Free Press.

TO ANNOY MR. HOOVER.

There will be presidential primaries next year, and they are free for all. Anybody who thinks he may win, or even is merely desirous to advertise himself, can enter the race. The thought seems to have occurred simultaneously to a number of the Progressive Republicans opposed to the renomination of President Hoover, and they are now talking about wresting several states from him. They need a leader or at least a nominal candidate, but find no difficulty in uniting upon such a man. They all agree to the general idea—namely, that some Republican should contest the nomination with Mr. Hoover—but each one of them modestly declines the proffered honor, or the post of danger. The various gentlemen mentioned—Senator Borah, Senator Brookhart, Senator Johnson, Senator La Follette and others—politely bow and say, in effect: "After you, Alphonse." Goernor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, has not yet renounced presidential ambitions, and is the one of them all most likely to contest the primaries in 1932.

The motive behind this proposed manoeuver is not hard to divine. There can be no hope of success against President in the next Republican national convention. But in advance of its meeting he and his friends may be a good deal bothered by a little display of dissatisfaction and hostility. That must be the main intent of the demonstration, if it is made. But the mere threat of it has brought about a singular rallying of the "Old Guard" to the support of Mr. Hoover. The very leaders and party machines which were most violently opposed to his nomination in 1928 are now promising to exert all their strength, and instruct all their delegates, in his behalf. No one said more unkind and contemptuous things about Mr. Hoover in 1928 than Senator Watson, of Indiana. Next year he is expected to be the chief trumpeter of the President's greatness. This result was probably foreseen by the astute Progressives who may have wished to compel the President to ally himself openly with what they are delighted to call "the reactionary element" in the Republican party. If this is the case, it shows that they are simply laying plans either way, to cause Mr. Hoover political annoyance.—New York Times.

"Hoof and Mouth" Disease.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

I have a letter on my desk requesting information about a condition known as "the foot and mouth diseases." Undoubtedly the inquirer has been misinformed about this ailment.

Though foot and mouth disease may infect man, it is primarily a disease of cattle. It is an acute and highly contagious disease, usually confined to cloven-footed animals.

The disease is characterized by an eruption of blisters on the lining of the mouth and on the skin between the toes and above the hoof. It may sometimes involve the udder and other parts of the animal.

The condition is rarely seen in the United States. There was only one outbreak reported last year. Energetic measures taken by the department of agriculture quickly terminated this possible epidemic.

The disadvantages of the methods used are chiefly in the loss of cattle required in the checking of the disease. Infected cattle must be isolated and when necessary, slaughtered and buried. All suspected cattle must be quarantined and kept under rigid supervision. These measures, though tedious and at times costly, are essential for complete eradication of the disease and the saving of other animals.

The infection is transmitted to man through the drinking of raw milk and buttermilk, or the eating of butter and cheese originating from infected animals. Children may become infected by the drinking of unboiled milk in a neighborhood where the disease is prevalent.

Men who are in charge of milking, caring for or slaughtering of infected animals, may become infected by contact. The disease in man is usually mild and no serious effects have ever been noted.

The disease may be prevented in man by extreme care in the selection of animals from which milk is taken. Pasteurization of milk in all suspected areas is the best means of preventing the disease. Children should not be allowed to drink unboiled milk.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

MISS B.B. Q—What causes the hands, feet and arms to feel as though they had gone to sleep? Often when sitting for any length of time my whole side feels dead. The hands as well as the soles of the feet feel hard upon arising in the mornings.

A—This is probably due to a circulatory disorder. Improve your general health and your circulation will improve. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

• • •

E.H.P. Q—I have tried to diet, have almost starved myself and to no avail. What would you suggest?

A—If you cut down on sweets and starches and take some regular exercise you should reduce safely and surely.

• • •

JACK T.G. Q—What would cause extremely sharp, cutting pains in the intestines and in the stomach? There seems to be an ache and it is very sharp for an instant.

2—What causes a swimming sensation in the head?

A—Probably due to gas caused by poor digestion and sluggish bowel action. Correct your diet and take more exercise.

2—This may be due to poor circulation or to biliousness. Be sure that the intestinal tract is kept clear and improve your health in general.

• • •

MRS. B.R. Q—Can I substitute nuts for meat and what kinds of nuts would be the most fattening without being acid-forming?

A—Yes, nuts are healthful and nutritious. Those too rich in oil may be indigestible. However, each system is different and you may not be troubled in this way.

• • •

J.M.Q. What can be done for sluggish elimination?

A—Correct the diet and be sure to take lots of outdoor exercise.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Syndicate, Inc.

New Universes.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

Long ago in the Tribune Paul proposed that the world could be made intelligible by transcription to a system of right triangles. Flat space as it is called, or Euclidean space, as we continue to call it, really has for its criterion the famous proposition named for Pythagoras: the square on the hypotenuse of a right-angled triangle is equal to the sum of the squares on the sides. The same thing with modifications, is found to be true of all kinds of space. The criterion is what is known as the line-element. The principle of continuity is resorted to and the coefficients of the line-element are determined by equations known as differential equations. These equations embody in mathematical form the relations between space and time, the interactions of matter and energy.

There is considerable evidence available nowadays indicating that the universe is finite. One such universe was constructed theoretically by Einstein, and this universe has been called the static universe. The other universe was conceived by the Dutch physicist and astronomer, De Sitter who called it the empty universe. The static universe contains a definite amount of matter and the amount of matter is definitely connected with the size of the universe so that the customary to say: the more matter the more room is provided for it.

The empty universe as its name indicates, contains no matter, but as De Sitter expresses it if one particle or test body and one observer were introduced into it the observer would see a motion of the particle in a direction away from himself and with a velocity depending on the distance between the observer and the test-body and on the radius of the universe.

This radius of the universe is directly connected with the amount of matter the universe contains. In the static universe as its name implies the matter which it contains must be in equilibrium. There can be no systematic velocities but only irregular motions. In the empty universe however, there can be systematic motions but no matter.

Is it possible to decide between the two? Or must we turn to some other conception? The observations of astrophysics show that neither the Einstein nor the De Sitter universe conforms to reality, since our universe contains both matter and systematic motions. Recent observations, especially at the Mount Wilson observatory have revealed that vast celestial objects such as extragalactic nebulae spiral, elliptical and irregular nebulae, are systems comparable in size and mass to our own galactic system. During the past two years the velocities of some of these very remote nebulae have been found to be very large. Until two years ago, the highest known velocity for a nebula was 1,800 kilometers a second. Since that time, much higher velocities have been found for some of the very faint and small nebulae. Some velocities are 4,000, 7,000 and 8,000 kilometers a second. Very recently Humason has studied an exceedingly remote nebula and found it to have a velocity of about 11,000 miles a second. For an empty universe the velocity of such a body and its distance from us are in a virtually constant ratio. Up to the time of Humason, it was estimated, on the nebula of highest known velocity, 8,900 kilometers per second, that the radius of the universe was two thousand million light-years.—Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Personal Liberty Legislation.

BY J.H. GALBRAITH.

A perusal of old statutes of this state concerning amusements, entertainments and personal conduct, would convince some of those who are now denouncing what they call our personal liberty legislation, that not only is this no new departure, but that the trend of such legislation is away from what might be regarded as unnecessary and unwarranted interference with personal liberty, that with the years popular view has changed in regard to these matters, and that on the whole the "shalt-nots" have been lifted from the innocent and harmless things and placed against those out of which public evil flows.

It was once a misdemeanor to conduct any game of nine-pins—bowling—in a public inn, not merely on Sunday, but on any day. There was something inherent in the game that conduced to public immorality, in the view of that law. A fine of from $10 to $100 awaited the offender.

One who promoted or took part in a boxing match for a prize and charged admission could be fined $50. Wire-walking, public dancing, juggling or doing of sleight-of-hand tricks, was all forbidden, and a fine for engaging in these things up to $10 was provided.

Cards were evil per se, also, and not only was the playing of card games forbidden, but any one who brought a deck of cards into the state might be fined from $5 to $20.

Talk about strict Sunday laws, it was once an offense, punishable by a fine of from one to five dollars, to travel on Sunday. And yet at the time when many of these laws were in force, the sale of intoxicating liquors was as free on any day of the week as that of articles of food or wear. Looking at these changes, it seems we have become more sensible about it.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, May 8—Thoughts while strolling Broadway: Two well-dressed young Irish cops with the brogue of Blarney in their voices. A. N. Ayerswood and Washington Cross look alike. The versatile Jay Jerome Williams—the Edwin Alger of the comic strips and radio, syndicate manager and lecturer.

Dr. Abraham Flexner a Louisville, Kentucky boy who made good in the city. Bill Lengel who peace-makered the Dreiser-Lewis bout, turbaned Hindu in a rumble seat. Theodore, former head waiter now directing Ritz tower. And friend of Molnar and Oppenheim. Shining modernistic fronts on west Thirty-Fourth street.

Julius Tannen looks the same as he did twenty years ago. And he has a grown son. A pineapple drink shop features a Hawaiian guitarist. Dudley Field Malone's pink complexion. Nothing can look so bedraggled as a soiled white poodle. Never hear of "pink ones" any more.

The late and beloved Nick Longworth had a double floor-walking on the avenue. A comical faced lady in black wearing a red rose. Evansville, town has a Lige but you never hear any one by that name in New York. Nor any one named Clint. Or Ab. They are all Als and Dans.

Who remembers when Martin's demanded strictly formal dress? And flopped. And gray derbies with black eyelets in the crown. No one by the way is carrying on with a gray derby since Raymond Hitchcock left us. Save Tommy Minard and he's in far away Shanghai.

Fur store proprietors who stand out from Spanish dentists. Red nosed, raggedy waiters hunting cigar stubs. I've always wanted to have one tattooed, batned and outfit him in the ladies' fashion. Take him to the Ritz to dinner. And write a magazine piece on his reaction.

The front of the Hippodrome looks like a circus side show. I first saw Annette Kellerman there. And where is she? "Apartment for rent" signs where you never saw them before. Ned Wayburn moves like electricity.

The passing of Dr. George A. Dorsey a few weeks ago removed not only a celebrated anthropologist and author, but the most beloved poker player New York's literati has ever known. To the gang around the green baize table he was Doc, fervently free of guile and an apple-cheeked gentleman with the disarming smile of a green grocer. He was the highest of highbrows and yet as though a trifle ashamed of his intellectual depths he resorted to such ungrammatical nuances as "I seen" and "I done." I once heard him drop his cards to a caller with "I knowed you had 'em." He was passionately devoted to his scientific studies, a fellow of a score of them and that societies but among those privileged to his friendships he was just "Doc, a grand guy."

Istanbul—Fastest Growing City.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

If you would see any of the old Constantinople in modern Istanbul, you'd better hurry to the ancient Turkish capital. For of all the famous places of the earth that are passing through a revolutionary metamorphosis from the old to the new, the pace of change is swiftest and sharpest in the stronghold of up-to-date minded Mustapha Kemal.

Who hasn't head of the mystery and romance to be found in Constantinople's old streets? One looked up at the houses and remembered the thousand tales he had heard of great beauties imprisoned in harems and their fabulously rich and powerful lords.

When Kemal changed the name of his city the change was a symbol of a radical policy of "Off with the old, on with the new." The two greatest manifestations of this spirit were the discarding of women's veils and the men's time-honored fez.

Today, you will find the women of Istanbul walking through the streets with faces uncovered. In the hotels and cabarets you will see them actually dancing with men. Such things were not only unheard of a few years ago, but would have been regarded with horror by the Turk, steeped in the tradition of his fathers.

Some of the women welcomed the new freedom. But getting the males to cast aside their treasured hat, the fez, was so stubbornly fought that laws were passed providing for the arrest and imprisonment of all Turks found wearing the old-fashioned fez.

Next in importance to this change, which means not only a change in headgear but also a change in the mental processes that go on under it, was the substitution by the new government of the Latin alphabet for the intricate and difficult Arabic script. This has brought the possibility of education to millions of ignorant Turks. Kemal, in ordering it, had his eyes on the future. He felt that if his people were to compete with the other nations of the world they must gird themselves with knowledge and he was sure that the beautiful Arabic was too trying for any but the most persistent scholars.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, May 9

AN interesting day and one of some good prospects is read from the ruling lunar and mutual configurations. There is augury of some unforseen change, removal or journey, which has advantageous prospects, probably in connection with labor or industry, but an unfortunate tendency toward rash and hasty words and a generally turbulent and impetuous attitude may prove detrimental. With this contentious spirit under control in personal as well as business affairs some sound benefits may be expected.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for some unexpected change, removal or journey during the year, one of benefit and personal advantage, but a tendency to contention, impetuosity and unbridled self-indulgence should be suppressed. A child born on this day should be talented, skilful, industrious and have excellent social qualities, but these may be offset by an inclination to impetuosity, quarrels and headstrong and indulgent behavior.
